

Master of Music Education

Music Education with a Concentration in Applied Studies (MME)

Douglas T. Owens, Graduate Program Director

The College of Arts and Letters and the F. Ludwig Diehn School of Music offer the Master of Music Education degree with concentrations in Applied Studies (performance, conducting, composition), Research, and Pedagogy. The graduate degree is designed to develop advanced knowledge of broad-based principles and practices in music and music education for application in the public or private school, private studio, or higher education setting. A minimum of 34 semester hours of coursework is required to complete the degree, with the hours distributed according to the area of concentration. Virginia Department of Education teacher licensure is not included with this degree.

Admission

For admission to the Master of Music Education program, each candidate must have earned a bachelor's degree in music and have earned an overall GPA of 3.0 with a 3.0 GPA in the major field of study. Candidates seeking the concentration in Applied Studies are required to complete the music performance audition for selected Diehn School of Music graduate faculty. See the F. Ludwig Diehn School of Music Graduate Admissions page (<https://www.odu.edu/music/admission/graduate/>) for complete information.

Curriculum Requirements

The three areas of concentration for the Master of Music Education degree are:

1. Applied Concentration, requiring 34 hours of coursework and full master's recital in either performance or composition, or various conducting performances with the assigned ensembles;
2. Research Concentration, requiring 34 hours of coursework and a thesis or problems paper;
3. Pedagogy Concentration, requiring 34 semester hours of coursework and a culminating portfolio presentation.

Required credits for each concentration will include core coursework as well as coursework in the Concentration and Cognate/Elective areas.

Before the completion of 12 credits, each candidate must declare a concentration of study. Those admitted to the applied option must pass an applied jury or performance presented before the graduate faculty for continuance review during each semester of study. Students in all concentration areas must pass the graduate music theory placement test prior to or during their studies. Note: The graduate music theory placement test is waived for students that earned their undergraduate degree in Music at Old Dominion University. All students must pass the written comprehensive examination near the completion of their studies.
